St Teath Residential

It was our pleasure to work with the Award-Winning Architect Gavin Woodford and his team on this secluded project located on the wild Cornish north coast.

Set within a beautiful private valley leading to amazing and spectacular sea views from its high location with rolling grassland falling into steep cliffs.

The original property, a former farmhouse, was the inspiration for the new design including the simple profiles and elevations.

It was fundamental to the integrity of the design that the original farmhouse blended seamlessly with the new extension and the use of multiple natural elements would ensure the build in its entirety bedded into the natural environment.

The internal floor has a unique feature of Granite Setts in a herringbone pattern which has successfully complimented the Architect's eye for unique internal detail.

Matching worktops in a matt Granite finish have contributed to this bespoke amazing kitchen.

The newly enhanced and award-winning Carbis Bay Spa offers sensational panoramic views from the heated swimming pool and sauna cabins.

Drawing inspiration from the Cornish coast and blending seamlessly into the environment utilising our Coastal Range of Basalt paving and Granite setts and edging.

The spa has since been crowned the winner of Best Spa Hotel and also Best Coastal Hotel in the prestigious, Luxury Lifestyle Magazine Readers' Travel Awards 2021.

The Pig Harlyn Bay

One of Cornwall's most historic houses dating back to the 15th century, The Pig at Harlyn Bay is a stunning example of a Cornish Boutique hotel.

During the extension of this Grade II listed building it was imperative that the new areas blended with the 15th Century house. Utilising slate walling, each stone was specially selected to match and blend with the original stonework.

Overlooking Harlyn Bay near Padstow, the house has been totally transformed into the boutique hotel it is today, 'The Pig'.

Multiple teams of stonemasons clad the traditional style stone house, providing exceptional quality for a high end, boutique appearance. Chosen for its strength, this Rustic Walling Stone has excellent ethical and environmental credentials as it is a recycled product.

The indigenous features of this product has retained the heritage of a beautifully weathered, aged building in Cornwall.

Featherbeds Residential

For the Featherbeds project, we worked along side our close partners ARCO2 who specialise in sustainable and self-sufficient buildings.

Featherbeds makes use of its rather unusual situation in a narrow valley with running water surrounded by beautiful Cornish woodland and a private lake. The main external skin is a lovely mix of stone from a variety of Cornish quarries which flows throughout the home. reflecting inside and out perfectly.

The grounds were all specifically landscaped to flow from the house using local stones and slate to blend the inside and out in this wonderful home.

Utilising a mixture of Black Opet tumbled limestone on the floors throughout the majority of the home with local stone walling to cohesively bring the design to life.

Comfort Galarno and Tumbled Bergamo in the open plan living, kitchen, dining and sunken TV area. These lovely spaces flow out into a Millboard deck and Coastal Ash Black Granite patio.

Working with the Client and Design team we created and implemented the Natural Puddling Clay to waterproof the organic swimming pool.
